William Morris on Prostitution: A Letter of August 17, 1885

Terry L. Meyers
College of William and Mary, tlmeye@wm.edu

Follow this and additional works at: https://scholarworks.wm.edu/aspubs

Part of the Literature in English, British Isles Commons

Recommended Citation
https://scholarworks.wm.edu/aspubs/380

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Arts and Sciences at W&M ScholarWorks. It has been accepted for inclusion in Arts & Sciences Publications by an authorized administrator of W&M ScholarWorks. For more information, please contact scholarworks@wm.edu.
Victorians Institute Journal is an annual publication of studies in Victorian literature, art, and culture. VIJ is the official publication of the Victorians Institute and is produced under the auspices of the Departments of English at Virginia Commonwealth University and the University of Richmond.

Victorians Institute Members: U.S. membership in the Victorians Institute includes a subscription to Victorians Institute Journal. Dues ($15 per year) should be addressed to Professor Kathleen McCormack, Department of English, Florida International University, Miami, FL 33199.

Business Matters: Individual subscriptions are $15; subscriptions from libraries and institutions are $19 per year. From foreign addresses, add postage of $4.50. Orders for back issues are $12 ppd. for U.S. addresses, $16 for institutions; add $4.50 postage for foreign addresses. Institutional and foreign subscriptions, orders for back issues, reprint permission requests, queries about advertising, and other business communications should be addressed to the Victorians Institute Journal, Department of English, Box 842005, Virginia Commonwealth University, Richmond, VA 23284-2005 (Phone: 804-828-1331, fax 804-828-8684).

Web address: www.people.vcu.edu/~dlatane/Vl.html

VIJ is indexed in American Humanities Index and MLA International Bibliography.

Manuscript Submissions: Two copies of papers and reviews on Victorian literature, art, or culture should be addressed to the Editor, Victorians Institute Journal, Department of English, Box 842005, Virginia Commonwealth University, Richmond, VA 23284-2005. Copies should be submitted in MLA ms. style. Include appropriate SASE. Editorial report usually follows within four months.

ISSN: 0886-3865
ISBN: 0-9747726-0-7

Copyright ©2003 Victorians Institute Journal

Printed at Dietz Press, Richmond
Victorians Institute Journal

Victorian literature, art, and culture

Editors: David E. Latané, Jr.
Elisabeth Gruner
Editorial Assistant: Michaux Dempster
Victorians Institute
Officers 2003-2004

President: Mary Ellis Gibson
University of North Carolina at Greensboro

Vice President: Deborah Logan
Western Kentucky University

Secretary: Patrick Scott
University of South Carolina

Treasurer: Kathleen McCormack
Florida International University

Council Members-at-Large:
Carla Prichard, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill
Shannon Wooden, Shippensburg University of Pennsylvania

Victorians Institute Journal
David E. Latané, Jr., Virginia Commonwealth University
Elisabeth Gruner, University of Richmond

member

[Civil Engineering Library Journal]
Ghosts of the Victorian

7  Introduction

9  Sally Harris
Spiritual Warning: The Ghost Stories of Joseph Sheridan Le Fanu

41  Samuel L. Gladden
Passage: The Long and Difficult Death of the Victorian Era, 1893-1945

57  Deborah Logan
“No voice is hushed”: Ada McGrath’s Buried Life

85  Louisa A. Hadley
Spectre of the Past: A. S. Byatt’s Victorian Ghost Stories

101  Michel Faber
Eccentricity and Authenticity: Fact into Fiction

105  Elisabeth Gruner
Rev. of Charles Dickens in Cyberspace by Jay Clayton and Functions of Victorian Culture at the Present Time ed. by Christine L. Krueger

Essays on Fiction

109  Grace Kehler
Opera in the Family: Eliot’s Daniel Deronda
157  Simon Cooke
Dangerous Subversives: The Role of Painters in Sensation Fiction

173  Eric Levy
Property Morality in The Mill on the Floss

Texts

187  William Baker
Wilkie Collins's Notes for The Moonstone

207  Terry L. Meyers
William Morris on Prostitution: A Letter of August 17, 1885

209  David Latané
An Unnoticed Really Bad Review of Browning’s Strafford

Reviews and Review-essays

211  Paula Marantz Cohen
Rev. of Victorian Literature and the Anorexic Body by Anna Krugovoy Silver

213  Susan Hamilton
Rev. of The Theological and Ethical Writings of Frances Power Cobbe, 1822-1904 by Sandra J. Peacock

219  Leila S. May
Rev. of The Flirt’s Tragedy: Desire Without End in Victorian and Edwardian Fiction by Richard A. Kaye

225  Sally Mitchell
Rev. of Chastity and Transgression in Women’s Writing, 1792-1897: Interrupting the Harlot’s Progress by Roxanne Eberle

227  Jeffrey Twitchell-Waas
Rev. of Victorian Modernism: Pragmatism and the Varieties of Aesthetic Experience by Jessica R. Feldman
231 Adrienne Munich
Rev. of Henry and Mary Ponsonby: Life at the Court of Queen Victoria by William N. Kuhn

234 Sophia Andres
Rev. of George Eliot: A Bibliographical History by William Baker and John Ross

237 Ana Vadillo

241 Notes on Contributors

Cover: Michel Faber, illustration for The Crimson Petal and the White, adapted from "The Sisters" by Charles Baxter (1809-1879)
William Morris on Prostitution: A Letter of August 17, 1885

Terry L. Meyers
College of William and Mary

The conference and demonstration were being organized, largely by W.T. Stead, editor of the Pall Mall Gazette, a part of Stead’s “new Crusade” against pornography, indecency, and prostitution, and in support of the Criminal Law Amendment Bill that had just been passed by the House of Commons on August 7, 1885 and accepted by the House of Lords on August 10. Stead was eager to move forward the campaign begun by his famous expose “The Maiden Tribute of Modern Babylon,” and hoped that the meeting and demonstration would help, according to his biographer, “to generate sentiment for purity reforms, to purify individual actions, and to form ‘Vigilance Committees’ in every town.”

The letter was printed in the Pall Mall Gazette as one of dozens received by the Demonstration Committee expressing regrets at being unable to attend, participate, or speak—there was, given the season, a “general absence of ladies and gentlemen of influence in town” (p. 11). Morris’s letter distinguishes itself by its independence of thought, by its setting the problem of prostitution and its solution in an economic and social context, and by its polite skepticism of some of the dynamics and values behind the movement being celebrated:

Kelmscott House, Upper Mall, Hammersmith, August 17.

Sir,—The Socialist League is going to have a platform of its own, at which I shall have to speak as in duty bound. But besides that, if you will allow me to define my position a little closer, I must say that I fear the matter is now being pushed in a wrong direction. I am far from sure as to the wisdom of some of the main provisions of the bill (though, of course, I am opposed to the Tory and "respectable" opponents of the movement), and I am quite sure that no legislative enactment will touch prostitution as long as the present condition of the people exists; as long, in short, as there are rich and poor classes. I think it is misleading and dangerous to put any other view than this before people, and I especially fear the very possible danger of a Puritan revival obscuring the real causes of this hideous unhappiness. Of course you understand that I have nothing to say against the single-heartedness of most of those engaged in the movement, and that I think they have done good service in exposing the rottenness of society on this point. With many thanks for your kind persistence in asking me to speak, I am, dear Sir, yours faithfully, WILLIAM MORRIS.

1Raymond L. Schults, _Crusader in Babylon: W.T. Stead and the Pall Mall Gazette_ (Lincoln: U of Nebraska P, 1972), p. 169. Schults provides a detailed account of Stead’s campaign on behalf of the Criminal Law Amendment Bill (pp. 128-192); the _Pall Mall Gazette_ of the period is, of course, itself a prime source of further information.